1. General overview of recent major developments at the reporting library.

The National Library of Thailand was moved to new location on Samsen road and officially declared open on May 5, 1966 which was main missions to collect, preserve and store the nation's intellectual and cultural heritage materials in the forms of printed and non printed materials, audio-visual materials and electronic media acquired from Thailand and abroad. At present, the National Library of Thailand has all of materials stand more than 3,000,000 volumes. In 2009, the Ministry of Culture allotted budget to the National Library to build a new building in the National Library compound. The library additional space had increased to more than 10,000 square meters. For the convenience of users, all the library services and offices are moved to the new building which includes the Information Resources Development Group, Manuscript and Inscription Group, Manuscript Collection, Rare Book Collection, the Thesis and Dissertation. The new intranet system is being installed within the new building for the use of public and library staffs. The users who walk in the National Library could access to World Wide Web with free WIFI. Nowadays, there are 11 national library branches located in the provinces.

2. Relationship to government

- National Library (NLT) of Thailand does not have a National Library Act although legal deposit is in the Press Act A.D. 2007. The Act enabled NLT to be the national organization empowered to undertake all library functions including national union catalogue, legal deposit of published works in Thailand, the issuance of ISBN and ISSN numbers for all Thailand publications, the comprehensive public and community libraries services nationwide and the extensive powers of the nation's National Library functions.
- National Library of Thailand supports and promotes the King Vajiravudh Memorial Hall improvement project. Since the building was constructed in B.E. 2520, the internal and external parts are in decline and the technology for services are out-of-date. Fortunately, the Bureau of the Budget, the Crown Property Bureau, and the Government Savings Bank, are in cooperation to renovate and develop this building and internal system services with a budget of 20,000,000 Baht in the year 2013. This project is going on well on phase II with the budget from The King Vajiravudh Foundation.

- Continuing on well of the project to renovate the main building of the National Library with the budget of 260,000,000 Baht from The Ministry of Culture in the third year 2014 – 2016.
- In 2015, the Ministry of Culture allotted budget to the National Library to renovate:
 - 1) National Library Branch, Lat Krabang with a budget of 9,863,000 Baht.
 - 2) Damrong Rajanubhab Library with a budget of 780,000 Baht.
 - 3) Thavaravathu Building with a budget of 10,638,000 Baht.
