NATIONAL LIBRARY AND ARCHIVES

PHILIP BORG — DIRECTOR

ANNUAL REPORT TO CDNL 2003 – 2004

The Department of Libraries and Archives comprises the National Library in Valletta, the National Archives at Rabat and Mdina, and the Public Libraries in Malta and Gozo.

The mission of the National Library is to ensure the collection and conservation of Malta's documentary heritage for present and future generations. The National Library acquires, assembles, conserves for posterity and make accessible to the public, the collection of the nation's documentary heritage, regardless of form or medium, to be found in the libraries. It manages, administers, and develops the libraries under its control, and provides leadership to other Maltese libraries in such areas as management and conservation of library materials, and promotes national cooperation schemes and the professional training of librarians.

The mission of the National Archives is to fulfill the duties of the State to ensure the protection and accessibility of the nation's archival heritage. The aims of the National Archives are: collecting, appraising and organising all public records of archival value; making them available for research by preparing indexes, catalogues and all possible finding aids, and answering to post and telephone research queries both by Government Departments and individuals.

The Public Library system provides reference and lending services and enhance the quality of life by providing library material for education, information, research and leisure purposes.

THE NATIONAL LIBRARY

The National Library serves as a research and reference library and collects every item of Melitensia by way of the Legal Deposit Act 1925. It also houses the Library and Archives of the Knights of St. John, the Archives of the Università' and an almost complete collection of Maltese newspapers and periodicals.

Inauguration of the Custodian's House – at the National Library by the Hon. Minister of Education, Dr. Louis Galea

The Custodian's House was inaugurated on Wednesday 4th June 2003. The Director of Libraries made an introductory speech. After his speech the Hon. Minister officially opened the House which was blessed for the occasion. An exhibition entitled, "The National Library of Malta: a documented history" was mounted and the House was opened to the public. The exhibition, which was on display in the Reading Room of the Library, recounted, by means of documents, Government Gazette notices and photos, the history of the library as from its inception in 1555 and included early catalogues, fine bindings and rare books from the library collection. The inauguration coincided with the date of the official inauguration of the then Malta Public Library on 4 June 1812. The Custodian's House today serves as new furnished offices for the Acquisition, Bibliography and Cataloguing Units.

CD ABOUT THE NATIONAL LIBRARY

During this year, the Department collaborated in the production of a CD about the National Library, sponsored by the Maltese Commission for UNESCO and produced by Alert Communications Ltd. This features a detailed history of the origins of the library and the building, its past librarians, its archives and collections as well as an interesting gallery of rare books and outstanding manuscripts and the Brocktorff watercolours. It is hoped that the CD will be a stimulus for researchers and the public in general to tap the unfathomable resources available at the National Library.

WEB-SITE

During the year under review, the Libraries and Archives Department web-site was launched under the address <http://www.libraries-archives.gov.mt>. The site is divided into four sections - the National Library, the Central Public Library, the Gozo Public Library and the National Archives. Although the Gozo section only carries contact information, the other three feature details about the entity concerned – general information, history, collections, services and regulations. Judging by the number of e-mails entering the Department's mailbox, it seems that the web-site has been a great success and is accessed regularly by both Maltese and foreigners alike. Most of the queries request information regarding books or manuscripts in the library collections. Others seek information regarding entry requirements and other regulations in view of a possible visit to the library for research purposes.
